GIBSON DUNN

When serious issues arise, clients around the globe rely on Gibson Dunn to provide innovative solutions to complex problems.

The response to a crisis—whether it is a whistleblower's surprise allegation, a significant and unexpected accounting problem, a product recall, or a government investigation—requires a cohesive team equipped to take immediate action on multiple fronts. Gibson Dunn's Crisis Management Group is composed of skilled lawyers, including former prosecutors, judges, and government officials, with experience assisting clients facing major, company-threatening crises. Our lawyers have demonstrated their effectiveness in dealing with all three branches of the federal government, state law enforcement and regulatory officials, and international regulators. Members of this team also are experienced in developing and implementing prompt and effective media strategies to address any situation. And they are adept at counseling executives and boards of directors in preparing for and avoiding crisis situations before they arise.

Gibson Dunn's lawyers are known for their ability to turn around crises and guide clients through difficult events. The American Lawyer named Gibson Dunn to an unprecedented, consecutive term as the 2012 Litigation Department of the Year in recognition of the firm's "stack of victories of some of the country's thorniest cases." The publication observed that Gibson Dunn's extraordinary efforts on behalf of its clients extend beyond the courtroom: "Its litigators aren't shy when it comes to engaging the media . . . the firm's media savvy is just one way these litigators distinguish themselves."
