Jack DiSorbo is a litigation associate in the Houston office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP.

Jack's practice consists of trials and appeals in complex commercial litigation. He has represented clients on the plaintiff- and defendant-side in federal and state courts across the country in wide-ranging cases—including antitrust, oil and gas, trade secrets, intellectual property, and personal injury. He maintains an active pro bono practice, focusing on religious liberty and other issues.

Jack regularly writes legal articles on civil procedure and legal history, among other topics. In recent years Jack's work has focused on the newly implemented Texas Business Court. His article "A Primer on the Texas Business Court" was published in the Baylor Law Review and has been featured in multiple CLE's, including one presented by business court Judge Sofia Adrogué. His recent works have also been selected for publication by the Journal of Supreme Court History, Georgetown Journal of Law & Public Policy, and Heritage Guide to the Constitution (third edition).
