New York

Ryan Kim is a partner in the New York office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher. He is spearheading the firm's private credit initiatives and focuses on advising creditors, asset managers and alternative capital sources on all aspects of financing transactions.

Ryan has a comprehensive and distinctive practice that spans the full life cycle of a credit investment, from capital deployment to liability management transactions and in-court and out-of-court restructurings for debtors and creditor groups. Ryan has extensive experience with leveraged acquisition and recapitalization transactions, syndicated loan financing, cash flow and asset-based lending, rescue financings, debtor-in- possession financings, out-of-court and in-court restructurings and special situation opportunities. He is particularly active in representing clients in the tech industry and is a market leader in the growth capital space and in middle market investments, including representing business development companies and opportunistic capital providers.
