Washington, D.C.

Cameron Pritchett is a senior litigation associate in the Washington, D.C. office of Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher.

Before joining the firm, Cameron served as a law clerk to Justice Brett M. Kavanaugh of the Supreme Court of the United States, Judge Harry T. Edwards of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit, and Judge Stephanie A. Gallagher of the U.S. District Court for the District of Maryland.

He earned his J.D. cum laude from Harvard Law School in 2018. While at Harvard, Cameron was elected as a Class Marshal, and received the Dean's Award for Community Leadership. Cameron was a member of the Board of Student Advisers, a member of the Black Law Students Association, and served on the executive board for the Federalist Society. Prior to law school, Cameron graduated from Cornell University with a Bachelor of Science from the SC Johnson College of Business, where he earned Dean's List honors.

Immediately prior to clerking on the Supreme Court, Cameron practiced for two years at a nationally-recognized litigation boutique in Washington, D.C.

Cameron has discussed the Supreme Court's docket as a guest lecturer at multiple colleges and law schools, including Columbia University Law School, Georgetown University, Liberty University School of Law, and Florida International University College of Law.

Cameron is admitted to practice law in Maryland and the District of Columbia—as well as numerous federal courts.
