

Rachel Brass and Cynthia Richman Named Among GCR's Top Women in Antitrust 2021

Accolades | September 28, 2021

Global Competition Review

Global Competition Review named San Francisco partner Rachel Brass and Washington, D.C. partner Cynthia Richman to its list of Women in Antitrust 2021, which highlights "more than 130 female private practitioners, enforcers, in-house counsel, economists and academics who deserve recognition for their standout careers." The report was published on September 24, 2021.

Rachel Brass is co-chair of the firm's Antitrust and Competition Practice Group. Her practice focuses on investigations and litigation in the antitrust, labor, and employment areas. Rachel has extensive experience representing international and domestic clients in high-stakes appellate litigation in the Supreme Court, as well as Federal and state appellate courts throughout the United States.

Cynthia Richman has experience handling a wide variety of antitrust matters in a broad range of industries, such as microprocessors and other high-technology products, airlines, retail food services, pharmaceuticals, chemicals, defense, travel, and music. Her practice includes defending companies before state and federal courts, including appellate courts, in matters alleging a range of antitrust-based claims, such as price-fixing, tying, bundling, and other single-firm conduct theories.

Related People

Rachel S. Brass

Cynthia Richman

Related Capabilities

Antitrust and Competition